London: UK Health Secretary Sajid Javid said that there will be a 'rocky few weeks ahead' for the National Health Service (NHS) as Covid cases continue to soar in the country.

Speaking during a visit to a hospital in London, Javid said these are 'challenging times' for the health service and the 'best thing' people can do is get their booster jab, reports Xinhua news agency.

Javid's remarks came after two major incidents were declared in England due to pressures caused by the Omicron variant's spread.

"We know now that Omicron is less severe and we certainly know that once you get boosted that your chance of hospitalisation, our latest analysis shows, is almost 90 per cent less than it was with Delta," he said.

The UK reported another 178,250 coronavirus cases in the latest 24-hour period, bringing the total number of cases in the country to 14,279,785, according to official figures.

21 tourists stranded in cars freeze to death in Pakistan hill station

New Delhi: At least 21 people died of cold after they were stranded in their cars during the snowstorm in Murree in Pakistan on Friday night, according to Pakistan Interior Minister Sheikh Rasheed, Samia TV reported.

The hill station was crowded after tourists headed there to witness snowfall. On Friday night, the government imposed a ban on the entry of tourists to Murree and Galyat region. They won't be allowed to go beyond Saira Mel Toll Plaza, Rasheed said, except in the case of extreme emergency.

On Saturday, the minister revealed that so far, 23,000 cars have been brought back, while an operation is underway to rescue 1,000 more cars trapped in the snow. Heavy machinery has been called in to clear the roads as well.

According to reports, this week, nearly 140,000 vehicles entered Murree. Meanwhile, hundreds of people spent Friday night on the roads. Local residents have been out on the streets distributing warm clothes, blankets, and food to stranded tourists, the report said.

The deaths took place because roads were blocked and people were stuck in their cars for hours. They couldn't reach their hotels.

Meanwhile, Pakistan opposition leaders have questioned the role of the government during the crisis. "What was the PM doing while his party was prepared," asked PML-N's Hamza Shabbaz. IANS
